A HERO OF SHILOH DEAD.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM MILLAR, A BRAVE WAR VETERAN, PASSES AWAY.

Death Comes to Him Quite Suddenly in Texas Town-His Active Military Service in the Union Cause.

The news reached this city yesterday of the death of Captain William Millar, an old fesident of Kansas City, at Texarkana, Tex., on Monday. His death was very sudden and was due to pnoumonia. Mr. Millar was engaged in laying out the lines of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf rail-way in Texas, at the time of his death. His remains will be brought through to this city either to-morrow or Friday, for burial at Liberty.

Mr. Millar took quite a prominent part in the upbuilding of Kanses City, and his company of the Twenty-fifth Missouri Volcompany of the Twenty-fifth Missouri Vol-unteers was the one which precipitated the battle of Shiloh. He was been August 23, 1821, in Ireland, and was educated for a civil engineer at Belfast. In 1841 he went to South America, and a year later came to the United States. Just before the war he was engaged in surveying and engineer-ing for the government in Kansas. When the war broke out he was a resident of this city, and enlisted in Colonel Van Horn's battalion. United States Reserve Corps, U.S. V. He was immediately elected the captain of Company Bof that organization. The company Bof that organization. The company was composed almost entirely of Irishmen. Captain Millar was an exceedingly brave solider, and a very efficient officer. He was a participant in the battle of Lexington, and afterwards, when the battlelo became the Twenty-fifth Missouri regiment of volunteers, he was nt Shiloh. It was his company which brought on the battle. He was ordered to make a reconnoisance, it being thought by the colonel and lieutenant colonel of the regiment that the Confederates were in force in front. In fact, General Albert Skiney Johnston was rapidly approaching to give battle to Grant. Captain Millar's company deployed as skirmishers, and came full upon the Confederate advance.

The skirmish which followed began the battle, for not long after the Confederates swept the Union forces back, and captured Prentis' command. Mr. Millar wrote an article some years ago, to the Journal, describing some portions of that much mooted battle, and cleared up some mistakes.

This is for the purpose of improving the town of many including the town of Wyandotte. This is for the purpose of improving the tenness for securing a court at that point. Senator Peffer has introduced a bill which it is proposed to add to the general Indian hill making this provision. It is provided that the allottees of sections twenty-seven, north, range twenty-four, east, in the Wyandotte reservation, from paw agency, may sell and convey land, not exceeding 329 acres in extent, now used and occupied for townsite purposes in said sections. But the lands sold by each allottee shall not exceed one-half of the land owned by him within the limits of the agency. It is provided that all deeds of conveyance of gast lands are subject to the approval of the secretary of the later.

The fire department was called on two occasions yesterday to the Union Depot hotel, in the Union depot, on account of a burning five. The first alarm was at 5:15 o'clock and the second was at 7:55 o'clock in the evening. No damage was done. The appearance of the department at the Union depot caused large crowds to gather, until it was found that the fire amounted to nothing.

tiding Places of Stolen Watches Revealed After a Conference of the Prisoners -Extent of the Confessions Made to Chief Speers.

Robert Johnston, alias Walby, alias Robert Johnston, alias Walby, allas Young, and Joseph Hatton, alias Williams, alias Averitt, the long man and the short man of numerous criminal exploits on the highways recently, were committed to the county fall by Justice Kraeger yesterday afternoon, to await the action of the grand jury, on four charges of highway robbery. The highwaymen waived a preliminary hearing.

As exclusively told in yesterday's Journal, "Well," remarked the chief, "what have

"Well," remarked the chief, "what have you decided to do, boys?"

Both men were silvnt and looked at each other, each doubtless waiting for the other to speak. Finally Johnston asked to have a private conference with Hatton in the jail. It was evident that they had formotion a part of the programme. When they were naim brought before the chief they proceeded very cautiously in what they had to say and methoer would go a step further forward in thost admissions than the other. It was evident according to the arrangement boween them, that Hatton was to make the first remark. "We are in a hole," said Hatton, "and we want to try to get out as easy as we can. Nobody can blame us for that, and even those we touched ought to be a little light on us if we dig up their stuff."

"One of the watches is hidden behind the woodwork over the door of the room I had at Mrs. Roberts" said Johnston, abruptly, said that he door of the room I had at Mrs. Roberts" said Johnston, abruptly, said that he hole said that and a Mrs. Roberts" said Johnston, abruptly, said that he hole said that the woodwork over the door of the room I had at Mrs. Roberts" said Johnston, abruptly, said they he looked at Hatton.

not yet been canmed. The fourth watch, claimed by Hatton, was given into his possession.

Chief Speers said yesterday that he could not enter into all of the details of what transpired at the conference between himself and the two highwaymen. He said they virtually admitted three robberies though they did not say they committed them, in just so many words. Further than this he said that they admitted nothing of importance, so it appears that their confession, outside of the locating of the stolen goods, was little more than stated in yesterday's Journal. It is likely, however, that the police are still withholding certain information remarking the case.

It was found yesterday that Johnston is an oil offender and it is believed that he served a term in the Missouri penitentiary about five years ago under the name of Young. Chief Speers said yesterday that he did not believe the correct names of the two men were yet known. "Walby is only an alias adopted by Johnston after committing other offenses," said Chief Speers. The men have told me nothing of yaine conserning their past careers."

The bold and open manner in which the two footpads almost seemed to court arest is illustrated by many incidents that have been related of them since their iden-

QUEER STORY FROM NEBRASKA

Albert Whipple, Absconding Banker, Had Previously Been in the Jowa Penitentiary, It Is Alleged.

Omaha, Neb. Feb. 19.—Nebraska and Jowa people were startled to-day by developments which Indicate that Albert Whipple, the absconding banker, merchant and army contractor of Crawford and Hyannis, now a fugitive from justice, with creditors left in the lurch for $15.000 to $50.000, and Albert B. Whipple, who was sent to the Fort Madison prison in Jowa in December, 1886, are one and the same man, Whipple was the agent of the "Q" at Coin, Ia., at that time, and though a young man, soon attracted attention by the rapidity with which he grasped business propositions, and was slated for an executive position, with the company's tickets, was traced to him. He had succeeded in disposing of a large quantity when arrested, and was sent to the Jowa penitentiary. A young woman of Coin was desperately in love with him, and enlisted the sympathies of Congressman Hepburn and others, so that they interceded with Governor Larrabee for his pardon.

He went West when released and vowed never to return. While in prison Whipple mastered shorthand and upon his release secured a place with an army officer, and later became a clerk to a quartermaster.

He was stationed as transfer agent of the rovernment at Rushville and Bordeau, Wyo., and finally got army contracts at Fort Hobinson. He opened a store at Crawford and one at Hyannis, and later a bank, One day his bank at Crawford was entered and robbed, he claimed, of £1,000. His stenographer had been sent on an errand, and Whipple had been each on an errand, and Whipple had been each to most prevailed with the wall, from which his stenographer soon released him. It was thought impossible for him to have locked himself in, until Charles Grable, the banker, investigated, and found a fine wire leading inside, by which Whipple had been enabled to throw the boits.
